IN MEMORIAM

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN

November 9, 1940.

Pass on, tired soul, whilst traitors' bombs are falling.

And Britain holds the fort 'gainst greed and strife;

For you has come an Armistice eternal—

You, who for peace had sacrificed your life.

God grant to you what you would vain have given;

England is richer for the cross you bore.

Pass on, brave soul, into the light of Heaven,

A child of God and blessed evermore.

—Ena Constance Barrett, Newfoundland.

IRREPRESSIBLE SPIRIT OF CANADIAN SEAFARER

After being ten days afloat in an open boat, following the sinking by enemy action of the Saint Malo, Douglas Lane, who had been chief steward on the ship, reporting from somewhere in Scotland to the virtual department of the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships, cabled: "Sunk, saved and smiling. Slight case of trench feet and wound in leg, and being looked after royally. Please advise. Best regards."

"Travel to Canada" is the editorial advice to Americans in large display type contained in the New York Daily Mirror.

"Best way to contribute to both these ends is to spend your 'travel dollars' in Canada."

"Alarmists should not be permitted to fan rumors about border inspection into foolish fears that will keep Americans from planning a trip to Canada."

GROWN IN SUNNY SOUTHERN ONTARIO

Compromise Required

So many diverse interests throughout the Dominion will be affected if all or any of the recommendations of the Rowell-Sirois report on Dominion-provincial relations are implemented in legislation at an adjourned sitting of the House of Commons early in the New Year, that a spirit of give and take will have to prevail at the intervening conference of provincial premiers in Ottawa in January, otherwise there will be little chance of any benefits being derived arising out of these parties.

Some of the proposals of the Commission, as for instance those suggesting that the Federal government assume the bonded indebtedness of the provinces and the full burden of unemployment relief, are so far reaching, that it is the duty of all public corporate bodies, such as municipal councils, as well as citizens generally to study the report and its implications, so that they will be well informed on the issues involved and be able to give direction to their representatives in time to ensure that all interests are protected as far as possible.

It is doubtful if any document of such great importance has been submitted for the consideration of the people of this country since Confederation than the Rowell-Sirois report. It proposes, in effect, to change the entire financial set up of the federal and provincial governments, including such plans as to segregate the fields of direct and indirect taxation which is designed to solve the dual income tax problem and involved with it is provision for sources of income for the provinces.

Another vexed-problem which implementation of the report is intended to solve is that of succession duties. While the Dominion has not yet evidenced any intention to derive revenues from this source, having left that intact to the provinces to date, it is generally admitted in legal circles that Ottawa could do so if it desired.

Even though the Dominion has not encroached on succession duties, existing provincial legislation is unfair to the western provinces inasmuch as it enables the provinces of Ontario and Quebec to get a great deal of revenue which properly should belong to the western provinces and the maritimes, simply because head offices of most corporations are located in those two eastern provinces. This is one of the problems, referred to in the report, which probably can only be settled by approaching the question in a spirit of "sweet reasonableness."

Widened Influences

These and other proposals in the report are of such far-reaching importance and deal with such fundamental and all-embracing questions of public finance that their influence is bound to extend to every municipality, every corporation and every individual throughout the Dominion. Hence the importance that the report is being so widely understood, not only by those directly engaged in negotiations but by everybody.

Municipal financing, which has in recent years imposed a tremendous burden, present and future, upon the taxpayers, is involved in the recommendations embodied in the report, even though not dealt with directly. It is, therefore, important that municipal authorities study and understand the report; its proposals, and its probable effects upon their future ability to finance and take care of the requirements of the local taxpayers.

During the past few years, much of the provincial debt has been incurred as a result of the necessity for furnishing relief to its citizens hard hit by the depression. If the federal government is now to assume the financial obligations incurred on that account, the municipalities, no doubt, will expect that some measure of this relief will be passed on to them, since they also have had to pledge future payments from their taxpayers for the same reason, and this particularly applies to the urban municipalities, though the rural municipalities have had to incur obligations on the same account.

To The Provinces

By reason of their relationship to the provincial government which set them up, the municipalities will have to deal with their respective provincial authorities and it will be as well for them to make their requirements known before the pending Ottawa conference, so that provincial representatives will be properly posted on the municipal situation before undertaking discussions at the capital.

It has been suggested that these problems of internal finance should be taken up and dealt with without waiting for the termination of the war in the interests of unity within. It is to be hoped that the discussions that will be precipitated before agreements can be reached will not provoke discussion but will bring about a better understanding of the problems faced in different units of the Dominion. If this is to be achieved it can only be done by the several provinces tackling this gigantic task in a spirit of compromise.

No Lack Of Soap

Easy For Men In Canadian Forces

To keep clean it seems lack of soap would be a poor excuse for not washing if you're in the army, navy or air force.

Five hundred tons of soap—equivalent to more than 5,350,000 three-ounce cakes—has been purchased for the armed forces in the last three months, the department of munitions and supply reported at Ottawa.

Here are a few other mass purchases made by the department in that period: 140,000 razor sets, 42,000 brushes, 142,000 clasp knives, 100,000 sets of forks, knives and spoons; 100,000 water bottles, 50,000 bedsteads, 75,000 mattresses and the same number of pillows.

Wool Grading

To Be Compulsory In Canada After January 1st

Compulsory grading of all Canadian unwashed fleeced wool will go into effect next January 1, an official of the agriculture department said.

Grading will show exactly what quantities of various types of wool are available for military and other purposes, he said, and show the wool administrator, David G. Dick, exactly what quantities must be imported.

No innovation to the wool industry, grading has been in effect for nearly 25 years on voluntary basis, the official said. About half of Canada's wool has been sold through the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association, which has used the grading system now being made compulsory.

All wool will be graded within 14 days after it leaves the producers' premises and identity of each producer's wool must be maintained until it has been graded. Then a statement will be sent to the producer defining the grades into which the wool has been placed and the amount in each grade.

Grading will be done by the marketing service of the agriculture department or, in some large establishments, by graders employed by the dealers. Their work will be inspected regularly by the department.

Visitors Ask For Exhibit

Believe Princesses' Dolls Would Represent U.S. Fund For Refugees

Numerous visitors from the United States, viewing the Princesses' dolls in Toronto have asked that the dolls be exhibited across the border, Miss C. M. Beath, in charge of the exhibit, reports.

"We know the feeling of the people across the border toward Britain and her war refugees," is the gist of their comment, "and we are sure that these beautiful dolls would bring huge sums to the Refugee Fund in New York alone. Please send them."

Whether or not the requests can be complied with, it is impossible to say at present, Miss Beath stated. Insurance difficulties alone might prevent such an enterprise; but the matter will be given careful study. The dolls, property of the British princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, were sent to Canada by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth to help raise funds for war refugees.

Small Community In Saskatchewan Raised $550 For Bren Gun

Orkney is a little community of 120 persons or so down in the southwest corner of Saskatchewan. It is a little community, but it is big in its appreciation of the issues at stake in this war, and big in its desire to help win the war.

We have a letter from J. G. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the village of Orkney, and he tells, with pride, of the Board of Trade and Curling Club in that community going together recently to put on a carnival which yielded enough to pay for a Bren machine-gun for Canada's war effort. The sum raised was $550. It's mighty pleased the people of this district are," reports the municipal secretary. "They put it over in great style, no one begrudged buying tickets, and everyone turned out for Orkney's war effort carnival."

This contribution to the winning of the war is the most striking consideration that the Orkney area has been one of the hardest hit of Saskatchewan districts of recent years in drought visitation.—Regina Leader-Post.

Radio Mechanics Wanted

Men Now Needed For Ground Service Overseas

When we said last week that there was a great demand for radio men we had reference to Canadian needs. Since then a request has been received from England that 1,000 radio mechanics, needed for ground service overseas, be recruited in Canada in the R.C.A.F.

These men will receive regular R.C.A.F. rates of pay, or $2 per day plus $35 monthly if married, and $12 monthly for each child up to and including two. They will have the rank of Leading Aircraftman, Group II, and applicants must be between ages of 18 and 48, have high school entrance or equivalent as an educational standard; must be in category A medical test and must pass a trade test in Toronto before acceptance. When enlisted they will be kept at Training Depot, Canadian National Exhibition Park, Toronto, for about a month for inoculation and some drill and then sent overseas as fast as possible.

ANALYZE WHEAT PROBLEM DURING THE WAR YEARS

Ottawa.—Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner predicted to the House of Commons that the problem of balancing supply and demand in Canada's wheat situation would be practically ironed out in the course of events in the next five years. The questions of price and financing, however, provided more difficulty.

At the same time, Mr. Gardiner announced agreements with the British food ministry for the purchase during 1941 of at least $105,741,000 worth of Canadian wheat and agricultural products, exclusive of wheat. Mr. Gardiner has just returned from the United Kingdom, where he negotiated these wartime food agreements.

Mr. Gardiner forecast that during the next five years Canada's total wheat production will exceed its total consumption and export sales by not more than 100,000,000 bushels.

Analyzing the wheat prospects for the next five years, the agriculture minister calculated total production in that period at 1,900,000,000 bushels, on an annual average crop of 380,000,000. To that total would be added this year's carryover of 280,000,000 bushels, making a grand total of 1,180,000,000 bushels for the five-year period.

Canada would consume domestically 160,000,000 bushels a year, or a total of 800,000,000 bushels.

Exports to the United Kingdom would total another 800,000,000 bushels, figuring that Canada would continue to supply 100,000,000 bushels a year, or approximately 70 per cent. of Britain's overseas requirements.

Assuming two years of blockade and then three years of offensive warfare or peace, Canada could export to countries now blockaded 100,000,000 bushels a year for three years, or a total of 480,000,000 bushels.

These three totals added to 2,600,000,000 bushels, leaving a carryover at the end of five years of roughly 100,000,000 bushels.

However, Mr. Gardiner added, if Canada continued able to sell 30,000,000 bushels a year to countries outside Europe, which were not blockaded, instead of a surplus at the end of five years the demand would be 50,000,000 more than the supply.

"I do not consider, therefore, that Canadian wheat producers need to be pessimistic," he said. "The difficulty was the financing of the wheat which would have to be carried."

Mr. Gardiner estimated that about 800,000,000 bushels of wheat would have to be financed. Roughly half this amount would be financed for two years at a cost of about 80 cents a bushel and the other half for one year at a cost of 75 cents, if the present arrangement was considered.

"This would mean that the government would be required to put out about $320,000,000 on the two-year arrangement and about $300,000,000 on the one-year arrangement, making a total of $620,000,000," he said. "It is generally admitted that 70 cents advance at Port Wynn, which nets the farmer about 50 cents a bushel, does not cover his total costs of production and therefore does not maintain him as a contented producer."

"If he is to receive more, it must come from the sale price of wheat or from the taxpayers of Canada, or from both."

Plans For Future

Need Of Mining Industry Is For More Prospecting

Vancouver.—Canada must plan now for future maintenance of mine production as a result of the pressure being applied to the industry by war demands, George C. Bateman, federal metals controller and president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, told the western meeting of the C.I.M.U.

Bateman said the federal and provincial governments and the mining industry should work in co-operation to draw up a program of geological investigation throughout Canada.

Dr. John F. Walker, British Columbia's deputy minister of mines, said the greatest need of the mining industry was more prospectors and predicted "to encourage them we may have to establish a system of subsidies."

Extend Blockade

London.—The government announced extension of its blockade to include Byria, French West Africa, Liberia, Portuguese Guinea, Madagascar and Reunion Island—territories lying on three sides of Africa.

Airplane Shipments

American Plants Sending Bombers To Britain

Los Angeles.—Los Angeles county aeroplane factories have sent 1,745 military planes, including 945 bombers, to Britain and 100 bombers to Australia, a survey showed.

Hundreds more are in production, along with work on multi-engine dollar defence orders for this country.

Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has delivered 589 Hudson bombers to Great Britain and 100 others to Australia. The plant is still turning out these long range bombers for Britain, but the rate of production and total orders on hand are secret.

Britain also is reported to have orders for the new super-speed Lockheed P-38 interceptor plane.

Douglas Aircraft Company has sent 266 twin-engine D37A bombers to Britain. It also has delivered to England 70 other such craft of an original French order of 100.

Douglas has "a large number" of bombers at the factory for delivery as soon as minor adjustments are made. Two hundred and seventy-five more are to be delivered from the Boeing factory at Seattle, where they were built under sub-contract with Douglas.

Eight hundred training planes have been delivered from the North American Aviation Company plant, which is still turning out four a day for delivery to training centres in Canada.

Censor Air Raids

Good Reasons For Not Supplying Enemy With Information

London.—British news editors and sound reasons for making reports of damage by German air raids vague. Home Security Minister Herbert Morrison and Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary of state for air, said in a joint statement. The idea is to keep the enemy guessing.

Newspapersmen trying to send out a well-rounded picture of the raids may chafe at censorship which deletes names of towns—even if the Germans specify they raided those towns. "But there's a reason for the censor's action."

For instance, when the raid is in daylight in clear weather on a place which the enemy cannot fail to recognize it can be mentioned. At night, however, or in poor weather or even in clear daylight, but at a point far from the German base, the enemy frequently does not know where he has been. If the British authorities told him, the information would be a good test for his navigation methods and help in future.

Publication of a daily casualty total also comes under the ban. Taken with other facts in the enemy's possession, this might tell a good deal about the amount of damage done or the targets hit.

Donated Tank

Saskatoon Residents Supply Tank For Free French Forces

Montreal.—Mechanized fighting equipment of the Free French forces of General Charles de Gaulle will include a tank bearing the name and municipal crest of the city of Saskatoon, Sask. It was announced here. The tank is being paid for by subscriptions from Saskatoon residents.

Dr. William Vignal, Canadian representative of General de Gaulle, forwarded to Saskatoon the original cable of appreciation he received from the Free French leader.

It read: "I thank the citizens' group of Saskatoon for their fine subscription. The tank acquired, thanks to them, will bear the name and the municipal crest of that city."

Dr. Vignal said that before the Franco-German armistice a group of citizens in Saskatoon began collecting funds to send a tank to France. When the armistice came the group decided to turn over subscriptions to the Free French movement.

Issue Detention Orders

Ottawa.—Detention orders against 529 persons were issued under the defence of Canada regulations in the period from July 27 to Nov. 1, this year, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons. Of these 99 were Germans, 91 Italians, 61 Communists, and 15 members of the National Unity party.

Strengthen Gibraltar

Fortress Has Been Made More Impregnable Than Ever

Gibraltar.—Gibraltar's gun power has been immeasurably strengthened during the last few months and cannon now battle from the face of the rock, covering all approaches from land and sea.

There is every reason to believe the fortress is tank proof. If it is attacked, it is felt the garrison will be able to hold out for considerable time.

Among officers and men from the highest to the lowest a spirit of quiet confidence prevails, inspired by the knowledge of the immense strength of the rock guardian of the western Mediterranean.

BALANCE OF SEA POWER IS SAID TO BE ALTERED

London.—The balance of world sea power was "decisively altered" by the Taranto action, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, said in a broadcast.

Declaring that this is the "most important week in the history of naval operations of this war," Mr. Alexander said that the Taranto action, in which aircraft of the fleet air arm surprised and bombed the Italian battle fleet, "provides a clear answer to repeated assertions of the Nazis and their supporters that democracy is decadent."

"The results which flow from the action at Taranto must be far-reaching. It is not only that the situation in the Mediterranean has been transformed in a single, swift naval action, but the balance of sea-power throughout the oceans of the world is decisively altered."

Germany's surface ships have not always avoided action with British craft, the first lord said, but the results have been such that the Nazis have been forced to place some reliance in the Italian fleet.

"What is the condition of that fleet to-day?" the first lord exclaimed. "It would be interesting to know the comment of the German admiralty."

New York.—American war observers said that the Italian naval defeat at Taranto had given the axis powers a major setback. Naval critic Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, retired, asserted that Britain had dealt her enemies a multiple of lashes in one stroke. Aviation expert Major A. P. de Severy described the British victory as highly significant and said that Hitler will now be forced at a great cost to attempt to rescue Italy with Nazi aviation. Rear Admiral Stirling believed that the victory had weakened the Italian army in Africa and said that the collapse of this army would be a so-called body blow to Italy's war effort.

Might Be Serious Menace

Britain Taking Steps To Prevent Disease In Raid Shelters

London.—Britain is moving rapidly to eradicate an invisible menace which a House of Commons committee fears "may prove more devastating than the blitzkrieg."

This unseen foe is the threat of infection and epidemic lurking in overcrowded underground stations which have become night air raid shelters for thousands of Londoners—men, women and children and even babes in arms.

Representatives of the Labor party have condemned the department of health for what was described as laziness and insisted that effective action be taken immediately.

Rhys Davies, Labor member for Westhoughton, was one of those calling for quicker action. He said unless the nations that are at war are very careful with the health of the community they may be faced with much more serious issues than bombs, battleships and bayonets.

Malcolm MacDonald, minister of health, said it was hoped to implement shortly the recommendations of Lord Horder who already had mentioned shelter conditions and had suggestions to counter them.

Prisoners Help War Effort

London.—Even in prison, the war effort is being pressed. In one big jail, prisoners are making sandbags, camouflage nets, gas mask cases, shipping cases, cartridge boxes and other articles. One prisoner just released said the inmates were anxious to do their bit.

Spread English Language

London.—A charter to the British Council makes it "a body corporate for the purpose of promoting a wider knowledge of Britain and the English language abroad."

Reduce Farm Debt

Heavy Interest Reduction Has Been Granted To Farmers

Ottawa.—Reduction in farm debts amounting to $85,328,960 have been effected since 1934 as a result of the operations of the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act, the fifth annual report of the organization under the act showed. The report was tabled in the commons.

It is said that since inception of the act, 46,077 farmers had made application to have their debts adjusted, and 46,406 cases had been reviewed, the total debt involved amounting to $234,906,435.

An annual benefit to farmers of $6,642,519, in the form of interest reduction, had been effected, according to the report.

In the year ending March 31, 1940, when the act was in full operation in Saskatchewan and Alberta and for three months in Manitoba and British Columbia, cases dealt with numbered 6,900.

Expenditures for the year ending March 31, 1940, were $497,289.

WOULD STUDY POSSIBLE CHANGES IN WHEAT POLICY

Winnipeg.—R. S. Law, president of United Grain Growers, Limited, said in a statement his company was recommending to the Dominion government the establishment of a committee on western agricultural problems.

Purpose of the committee would be to discuss possible changes in national wheat policy necessitated by rapidly changing conditions.

"Certain problems . . . are bound to arise and should be considered before seeding," he said. "Conditions which arose this year convey a hint of the difficulties which will face western agriculture a year from now if, in the meantime, war developments have not brought a fundamental change."

One problem was the delivery quota system, based on seeded acreage which he believed would have to be continued next year.

"If farmers anticipate that quotas next year will be based on acreage sown to wheat in 1941 an unnecessary and undesirable incentive will be created to maintain or enlarge wheat acreage instead of using land and labor in other directions that might be desirable."

He suggested allocation of quotas for 1941 on some basic wheat acreage such as that of 1940 for which complete records were available. Another problem was the extent to which elevator storage for wheat should be increased, where it should be located and whether it should be temporary or permanent.

Increased storage meant an increase in the amount of grain farmers could deliver and the amount for which the Canadian wheat board would become responsible. Consultation between elevator companies and the federal government was desirable so their separate policies could be integrated.

Naval Losses

Admiralty Gives List Of Vessels Lost In First Year Of War

London.—First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, in a written answer to a question in the House of Commons, stated that the number of merchant ships, including fishing vessels, lost by enemy action during the first 12 months of the war was as follows:

British, 406 ships of 1,611,842 tons.
Allied, 103, of 474,816 tons.
Neutral, 253 of 769,212 tons.
Total, 762 of 2,855,870 tons.
Crew members and passengers lost totalled 3,327. The total saved was 15,835, total taken prisoner 1,300.

He said enemy losses in the same period totalled 261 ships of about 1,269,000 tons.

Canadian Seamen Lost

Thirteen Ratings Believed Killed And Eight Rescued In Jervis Bay Action

Ottawa.—Naval service headquarters announced that 13 ratings of the Royal Canadian Navy are "missing, believed killed in action" in loss of the British armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay.

The other eight R.C.N. men aboard the Jervis Bay when she sailed into battle Nov. 5 against a Nazi warship to protect the ships of her convoy, were rescued and have been landed at "an eastern Canadian port," the navy's statement said. Two of them were slightly injured.

SAYS ADVANTAGE ALL ON SIDE OF THE DEMOCRACIES

Canadian Field Headquarters, Somewhere in England.—Democracies are slow starters but good finishers in the opinion of Lieut.-General A. G. L. McNaughton, head of a British army corps.

"Once the democracies get going they should be—man for man—more effective than the autocracies," said the general in an interview at army headquarters in the British war zone.

"Quick starting power is the advantage of the autocracies but the democracies have great staying power. That is where our hope lies," he declared.

In the manner of a scientist dealing with a problem in physics, General McNaughton explained that the new fighting techniques of warfare could be applied more effectively by a democratic nation than by a dictatorship.

Rigid army discipline was outdated, he said, because the modern soldier was called upon to use much more initiative and mechanical ingenuity.

"Army discipline has been altered," said General McNaughton, "because we are now dealing with educated men. You must appeal to their reason and common sense. You can lead them and guide them but you can't drive them. Nobody but a fool would even attempt it."

"It would be unfortunate to create a discipline based on compulsion. In battle it won't work, the general insisted."

"In the old days soldiers fought in groups under the commanding eye of their officers. Now they are distributed over the battlefield and there is no way of checking up on them," said General McNaughton, explaining why the modern soldier had to be given greater freedom to use his own head.

"The change in discipline is the greatest revolution that has come over the army," he said.

"In the kind of revolution which is taking place, democracy has all the advantages if we realize it in time," added the general.

He pointed out that progressive countries like Canada and the United States had a special advantage in mechanized warfare because their people were already adept in the use of telephones, cars, tractors, radios and other modern devices.

General McNaughton went on to say that the standard of young Canadian officers was very high.

"You will find round these headquarters, serious-minded young men. It is right that they should be serious-minded because this war is a serious business," said the general.

"It's very easy to work with the young men of the army of to-day. They have a good background of education. They have a good spirit and they have common sense."

Radio Jurisdiction

Not Likely That Investigation Will Be Made In Senate

Ottawa.—Munitions Minister Howe, who has jurisdiction over radio in Canada, said he saw no reason for the House of Commons to set up a committee this session to inquire into radio activities.

The recent resignation of Alan Plaunt, of Ottawa, from the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the attack on the corporation by M. J. Coldwell, acting house leader of the C.C.F., had given rise to reports a radio committee might be set up.

Mr. Coldwell said a committee should be set up to investigate the CBC set-up.

Directs Educational Program

Dr. E. A. Chatwin Takes Up Work For Soldiers In England

London.—Dr. E. A. Chatwin of Saskatoon, arrived to direct an educational program for Canada's fighting men.

He is director of educational service for the Canadian Legion and will be assisted for a time by Col. D. E. MacIntyre of Ottawa, general manager of Legion war services.

The project has the support of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian commander.

In the Great War Dr. Chatwin rose from private to captain in the Canadian Field Artillery and won the Military Cross.

OF INTEREST TO

TIMBER WORKERS

Complying with the request of H. R. McMillan, Dominion timber controller, that lumber production be speeded up, the Alberta Board of Industrial Relations has amended regulations which called for a nine-hour day at a minimum wage of $35.00 a month with board and lodging, to allow a ten-hour working day at a monthly minimum of $37.50 with board and lodging.

In an order which became effective November 1st, the nine-hour day, $35.00 a month minimum, was set because improving conditions in the lumber business appeared to warrant action in the interest of the workers.

Subsequently Mr. McMillan informed the Department of Trade and Industry that the largest possible production of lumber would be required next year in order to fill British and Canadian war needs and Canadian requirements, and to build up foreign exchange reserves by sales to the United States.

The order which became effective November 1st, was passed in order to stabilize working conditions in the industry, and to provide opportunities for employment among the large number of experienced lumber workers in Alberta who are unemployed. Passage followed an amicable agreement between the Board of Industrial Relations and the important lumber producing units in the province.

Since war-time conditions have now affected the lumber industry throughout Canada, it is obvious that the heavy needs of the immediate future will tend to solve the problem of unemployment, but will only be filled themselves by the greatest production possible. The new orders, which were approved by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor on November 18th, will permit greater production while safeguarding the wages of the lumber workers.

The new regulations apply to all employees of sawmills, planing mills, box factories, woodworking plants, logging and railway tie contractors operating in rural districts more than ten miles from any city, or in towns and villages of less than 1,000 inhabitants.

Giving exemptions to employees from Section 5 of the House of Work Act, which sets a nine-hour day, the wage order states where the ten-hour day is carried on the minimum wage shall be $37.50 per month and board and lodging during the entire period of employment, including Sundays and holidays, providing that in the case of an employee who does not receive board and lodging as part payment of wages 75 cents per additional day shall be paid.

Minimum wage for cooks, cookieeas, bull cooks, night watchmen and barn bosses is set at $35.00 a month with board and lodging.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Windsor)

Edmonton, Nov. 18.—Premier Aberhart changed his mind and, taking Lord Lucien Maynard with him, went to Ottawa last week for the purpose of interviewing the federal cabinet in a preliminary way on various matters.

It is being said that one of these matters is the renewal of an application for a bank charter for Alberta. There is ample evidence that the thing the Aberhart government does not want is a bank charter, but it does want the chance to shout, "There, we told you so. The people's rights are flouted again!"

It is reported from Ottawa that the premier is seeking new ammunition for his campaign in Alberta and the application for a bank charter is a likely source of such hot-shot.

The bigger papers, which Aberhart describes as the "tools of the financial interests," are not paying much attention to the Ontario journeyings of Mr. Aberhart, but the smaller weekly papers are reported to be devoting more attention to his sayings and doings. He was scheduled to lecture at two or three places.

One Ontario weekly is reported to have said: "An inquiry into Premier William Aberhart's activities these days arouses amazement, even at this distance, that he is allowed to continue them." This reference was to Mr. Aberhart's campaign of propaganda as carried on in British Columbia and in Alberta, as reported by news services in the east. It is pointed out by this paper that the resultant bad effect of such a campaign is felt in the sphere of national unity.

Another Ontario paper is reported to have said: "Aberhart's intensive campaign of propaganda is of a type which at this distance does not seem likely to strengthen Canadian unity or the national war effort. The reason for the campaign seems obscure, since no Alberta election is necessary until 1945."

"If Alberta citizens want Aberhart to their premier and are willing to pay the price, it doubtless is their privilege as long as Aberhartism does not harm the rest of Canada or undermine the nation's war effort," one more paper declared. Such comment in the Ontario weekly papers does not seem like a good omen for any attempt by Mr. Aberhart to deliver himself of a series of lectures in that province. Yet, the premier, in a statement, issued to the press at Ottawa, stated: "I was especially pleased to see all along the way astounded how many business men are turning to the theories of Social Credit as the only solution for our difficulties."

Here in Alberta the people are not in any danger of being deceived by such statements. We heard long ago that Social Credit was sweeping Quebec—it is still unswayed; we heard in 1936 how Social Credit was sweeping across British Columbia like a prairie fire—but it isn't burned up yet. Alberta people were told the Social Credit forces were on the very threshold of a conquest in Saskatchewan. They returned two members in the following election. That was a victory worth recording.

People in Alberta were told over the air by Premier Aberhart himself during the first anniversary celebration of the party in Calgary that 20,000 persons were present, when there were not more than 4,000. The public in this province are used by now to the premier's exaggerations—to give them a polite description. And fewer people than ever are being fooled by him here.

A few years ago, Major Douglas, before his sun had set and while "chief reconstruction adviser" to His Majesty's Government in Alberta, made his first interim report, and therein emphasized the necessity of "a systematic provision of a new circulating system under the unchallengeable control of the province, particularly in regard to radio facilities of sufficient power to cover a wide geographical area." Mr. Aberhart was greatly impressed with that report. At the cabled demand of Douglas, he introduced and passed his "Press Muzzling Act." That vicious act, when challenged in the courts, was found unconstitutional.

Now, Mr. Aberhart, with the use of public funds, has secured practical control of Radio Station CKUA, the University station. It is being enlarged to meet the Douglas specifications and no doubt, shortly, the Campbells and the Kings and other paid public servants will be heard broadcasting the virtues of Aberhart's administration and extolling Social Credit as a Utopian soothing syrup.

THE PRESIDENT'S PRAYER

Yesterday was observed as Thanksgiving Day in the United States. A proclamation issued by President Roosevelt read in part as follows: "In a year which has seen calamity and sorrow fall upon many peoples elsewhere in the world, may we give thanks for our preservation. Let us pray: 'Almighty God, who has given us this good land for our heritage, we humbly beseech Thee that we may always prove ourselves a people mindful of Thy favor and glad to do Thy will. Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning and pure manners. Save us from violence, discord and confusion; from pride and arrogance, and from every evil way. Defend our liberties, and fashion into one united people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues. Endue with the spirit of wisdom, those to whom in Thy name we entrust the authority of government, that there may be justice and peace at home, and that through obedience to Thy law we may show forth Thy praise among the nations of the earth. In the time of prosperity fill our hearts with thankfulness, and in the day of trouble suffer not our trust in Thee to fail. Amen.'"

It having become necessary to give Greta Rorstrum a blood transfusion at the Clarendon hospital, a number of members of the Elks' lodge kindly offered blood for the case. ONE-WAY FARE FOR CHRISTMAS OR NEW YEAR'S LEAVE

All ranks of the C.A.S.F. proceeding on leave during Christmas or New Year's will be able to secure a return ticket to their destination at the cost of one-way fare. The duration of the leave will be six days and no more than 50 per cent of the strength of any unit, in any rank, will be permitted to be away at one time. The defence department expressly stipulates that whether leave can be granted will depend in all cases on the nature of the service being undertaken by the man concerned, the necessity of having certain types of training completed speedily, and the importance of the service from the point of view of the defence of Canada and of war conditions generally.

The department adds: "The guiding factor in the consideration of leave privileges to men on active service must be the defence and safety of the country and the obligations we are under by virtue of our war commitments. These have been duly weighed and fully discussed and their influence is to be observed in the decision now communicated."

FACTS AND FIGURES OF CANADA AT WAR

Addressing the House of Commons on November 12th, Prime Minister King gave some facts and figures of Canada at war. Here are a few extracts:

On active service—army, in Canada 115,324, overseas 52,093; total 167,417; navy 19,004, air force 30,599. Two hundred tanks secured in United States for training armored brigade. Canadian Navy has 140 vessels in commission. War contracts on Canadian account let to November 4, $448,000,000. Of these, 87 per cent placed in Canada, 8 per cent in United Kingdom, 5 per cent in United States. War contracts let in Canada for United Kingdom to September 3rd, $134,000,000. Additional commitments by United Kingdom for capital expenditure, $61,000,000. Commitments by Canada for capital expenditure, $235,000,000. Canada's October expenditures were at the rate of almost a billion dollars a year.

"Have you ever appeared as a witness in a suit before?" asked the attorney.

"Why, of course," replied the young lady on the witness stand.

"Will you please tell the jury what suit it was," demanded the lawyer.

"It was a blue suit, with white collar and cuffs and white buttons all the way down the back," replied the young lady.

HANDBILLS AND CIRCULARS
FAIL TO SERVE PURPOSE

A merchant will make a complete coverage of mailing circulars, only to be blindly informed by several in the territory covered that they received no circular. The answer is not that the mailman has been lax. It lies in the essential failure of circular mailing to serve the purpose intended.

Circulars come unexpected and uninvited to the average home. There is no particular aversion to the circular, it is just that it is something not looked forward to. This comes partly from its irregular appearance and partly because it is entirely devoted to the sender's interests.

Contrasting, a newspaper is invited. More than that, it is paid for. The subscriber comes to the awareness that it is issued as much in his interest as in the interest of the firms who fill its advertising columns. The news columns as well as the advertising features hold the attention of every member of the family. The man of the house doesn't stuff it in his pocket, or leave it forgotten in the car or in the barn, before other members of the family have had their look at it. The news, even more than advertising, holds the paper in the home until all have read it.

The newspaper is expected. It comes on regular days. If it doesn't arrive on schedule, questions are asked. If Pa has mislaid the paper, Ma wants to know about it. She can't be expected to inquire about Jones' circular, however, because even if she did want to see it, she probably had no inkling that one had come to their mail box.

The newspaper offers a regular service. You can depend on it being issued next week and the week after. It does not require a special event or a special combination of events to bring it out. It runs a regular weekly messenger service for all who are to use and pay for it. It is not an excursion special.

Because of its regularity of issue and development of reader interest, the service offered by the newspaper is of definite value. This would be true even if the paper never had a line or yard designed to promote legitimate community activity. It offers a definite service.

According to the High River Times last week, two thousand dollars refused to work with men of alien extraction and went on strike. What about the poorer miners?

An advertisement in a prairie paper calls for information leading to the recovery of a number of strayed hogs. Well, we have a few in Blairmore that just don't correspond one hundred per cent with the description.

An aunt said to her niece: "Don't you think we should pull that shade down, or has the fellow across the way a nice face?"

And the niece answered: "I don't know. I've never seen it without binoculars in front of it."

Charlie Hutt, of the Hutt Importing Company, Calgary, who managed the recent carnival staged by the Macleod Lions, sent a cheque for $20 to the club's cheer fund, asking that it be spent in purchasing Christmas hampers for the two oldest couples in Macleod, stating thoughtfully, that "it may be their last Christmas together, therefore why not make it as pleasant as possible?"

Sylvia Pankhurst, famous British suffragette, has been working secretly in North Africa for four years to stir up revolt among the Abyssinians. Her work in smuggling messages from Haile Selassie to his subjects has won her the title of "Joan of Arc of Abyssinia." She is quoted as estimating 100,000 Ethiopians are ready to rise against Italy in Kenya.

"Eat Beef For Muscle." — The North Fork correspondent to the Pincher Creek Echo states: We notice on some envelopes which reach us the suggestion "Eat Apples for Health." Emily points out that good grammar is as important as good manners. As an example, she tells this story of a friend of hers, a reporter, who had been assigned to cover the most important game of the year at Yale. After he got to New Haven, he wired his wife: "Have gotten tickets for game. Meet me at Hotel Taft." The telegraph operator let the message read: "Have got ten tickets for game. Meet me at Hotel Taft." and so the happy wife invited eight other people. Her husband was flabbergasted when he found he not only had to buy luncheon for eight guests, but had to spend much time and money for the extra football enthusiasts. Since then he has never said "got-ten."

PREMIER KING PROMISES
RETURNED MEN BETTER
REHABILITATION MEASURES

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, in a letter to Mr. Walker, dominion president of the Canadian Legion, has given assurances that plans are now being formulated for the satisfactory rehabilitation of men returning to Canada following discharge from the overseas forces.

The Legion president, who drew the prime minister's attention to the fact that there have been instances where returned men were finding it necessary to apply to relief offices for assistance in re-establishing themselves into civil life, was informed by Mr. King that "plans are being worked out which, it is our intention, shall be adequate to meet the situation as it is and as it may develop in the future."

Mr. Walker has expressed the deep gratification of the Legion that the government has promised to address the situation which, he said, "has up to the present been hardly commensurate reward for the services these returned sailors, soldiers and airmen have rendered."

The food situation in France is becoming "increasingly serious," according to information reaching the British ministry of economic warfare.

Helping Others

Wife of Seaman Becomes Foster Mother To Shelter-Users

Pack all your troubles in your old kit bag and bring 'em along to "Our Sue," for Sue relies in helping others who have "adopted" probably the world's largest family.

"Our Sue," who is the short, buxom wife of a Maltese seaman and is properly known as Mrs. Susie Spiteri, has become foster-mother to approximately 15,000 shelter-users in humble Steptown district. Single-handed she supplies first aid, looks after babies, feeds the hungry, consoles the bereaved and homeless and generally makes herself a Good Samaritan every night in the week.

A red-haired Lancashire woman in her early 40s, Sue didn't ask for the job. Nor was she ever officially appointed. She just found herself dealing with a larger crowd each night. At first she just began helping other unfortunate in her corner of the shelter. Then the corner gradually spread until it encompassed the whole shelter and the neighboring district.

Long after residents have left the shelters Sue's duties continue. Most of the day she spends carrying aid to women and children who may have suffered colds or other illnesses in damp shelters and require extra attention.

Nobody knows conditions in shelters better than Sue. She lives there all the time—in one corner of a huge warehouse where she has strung a curtain over one little section to give primary privacy to her old little quarters that contain a deck chair, a baby's stool, a stretcher and medicine table.

"I just nurse by instinct," says Sue. "I just can't help looking after sick people."

For which, says Mayor F. R. Levey, the people of Steptown "are truly grateful."

Changed Their Minds

Hostess Took Proper Way To Make Regiment Officers Dance

Brigadier C. W. M. Norris, appointed to a Special Command as a General Officer, was originally in the 11th Hussars and wounded four times in the last war. He commanded the 10th Hussars, whose nicknames are "Baker's Light Bobs" and the "Elegant Extracts."

"The tenth don't dance" was a saying attributed to the "dandier" of this regiment.

Whereupon a distinguished general's wife at a Government House function replied to the officers who pleaded this excuse to avoid dancing, "Then the tenth don't dance!"

An eagle owl lived 68 years in captivity in England.

Prehistoric Man

Believed To Have Lived On Western Plains Long Before Indians

Traces of prehistoric man of the "Yuma culture," believed to have inhabited the western prairies many years before the Indians, have been found near Hanley, 40 miles south-east of Saskatoon, by a party of archaeologists from the University of Saskatchewan.

Flint heads for arrows used in shooting birds, pieces of pottery made of baked clay, and several sharp-edged stones believed to have been used for skinning game and cleaning hides, were all found in the locality.

Professor J. W. T. Spinks said he could not estimate how long ago the early dwellers were in the area but believed they had a common origin with those who are believed to have inhabited Arizona and Mexico.

The arrowheads found were made of a type of flint not usually found in Saskatchewan and must have been brought here by the men when they trekked north from the United States, he said.

WHY THE STRANGE THINGS YOU DO IN YOUR DREAMS?

Understand Dream Symbols

What odd creatures we often are in dreams, seemingly so unlike our real selves.

Fastidious, modest young woman dreams of having sticky mud on her hands, or of walking half-dressed on a public street, or of taking a "joy ride" in a car out of control.

But even your most curious dreams are yours. Psychologists have found that they are symbolic messages from your subconscious mind which, when rightly understood, may warn of many a hidden problem affecting your life.

Sticky mud in a dream is likely to be a symbol of some unpleasant thought or experience you've tried to ignore. Dreaming of being half-dressed implies you may be ashamed of a feeling of insecurity in your social life, a fear that you may reveal something discreditable to you.

Car out of control hints you are taking a course you secretly feel is unwelcome.

Other images which may appear in your dreams are a burning house, an express train, a church.

The real meanings of these and other typical dream symbols are explained by a well-known psychologist in our 32-page booklet. Helps you read your own dreams, understand your inner self. Tells why some dreams come true.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of "The Meaning of Dreams" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

The following booklets are also available at 15c each:

Brought Good Sam

Two Rare First Editions Sold Recently in New York

Two rare first editions—one a Robert Burns and the other a Lewis Carroll—brought more than $15,000 each at the first season in New York of a three-day public sale of the literary collection of the late John Gribbel of Philadelphia. Dr. A. S. W. Rosenblatt, noted New York bibliophile, purchased Burns' "The Scots Musical Album," in four volumes, for $15,500, and a private Pennsylvania collector paid $15,300 for a presentation copy of the 1865 "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland."

The auction realized a total of $61,372 for the day.

Taking over command of the Swedish army Lt.-Gen. Ivar Hoggquist told soldiers that they needed the "support which religion gives." That's something a lot of people often forget.

People Told The Truth

Britain Not Afraid To Let Them Know What Happens

The British yesterday admitted the loss in one week of 168,000 tons of shipping. It was heavy loss, serious, but they were not afraid to tell it. Recently the British censorship was tightened; correspondents forbidden to name the places hit by German bombs on any particular day. This, however, was a purely military measure, and the New York Times, commenting upon it said:

"In trying to lead behind the British censorship, we must not forget how frank and fair the British have been in admitting their losses. Their casualties in air raids have been announced fully each month. Their tally of enemy air losses has been pronounced accurate by so good an American judge as Brig.-Gen. George V. Strong, whose only complaint on this score after returning from London was that the British were under-estimating German casualties. If the British do not tell us their weekly figures of aircraft production, if they do not describe their new weapons for night raiders, if they choose to keep the enemy guessing about the results of his bombings, who can complain? These are legitimate military secrets, and friends of Britain would not have it otherwise."

But apart from military secrets the British tell all; with the result that in neutral countries their statements are believed. Germany, on the other hand, because of her fantastic falsehoods (according to her figures she has sunk the whole of the British navy and then some), is believed by nobody; doubted even when, by accident, she tells the truth.

Finally, Britain has maintained steadfastly the right of criticism; of free opinion. Before us is the latest print of the London Statesman and Nation. It contains a bitter, almost violent, attack upon the Government with respect to air raid shelters; describes conditions in the shelters in a disturbing way. Other newspapers criticize almost daily, call for but dismissal of Ministers, attack even Mr. Churchill, complain about slack production. There is no censorship of such comments. It is the British way.—Ottawa Journal.

The Correct Score

Germany Lost 2,439 Planes Between August 7 And October 31

One can imagine Hitler waving the real score in the air warfare in the face of Ribbentrop and exclaiming: "And you told me the Jews were decadent!" Of 2,439 planes which Germany lost between August 7 and October 31, 2,439 were shot down over Britain or around the British coast, eleven over France, Denmark and the Low Countries, seven over Germany, 12 over the North Sea, three over Norway and eleven were brought down by British naval guns.

During the same period Britain lost 733 planes over Britain or around its coasts but saved the pilots of 385 of them, while in British offensive operations, patrols lost 162 planes.

Iowa Woman Designs Houses And Builds Them All Herself

Building homes is usually considered to be a man's job but Miss Florence Boyd, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is making it a profitable hobby for herself.

Soon she will begin work on her fourth house. She designs the structures and does all the work herself—from sawing and planing the lumber to pouring the cement.

Taking Precautions

British Parliament Has Alternative Meeting Place If Need Arises

Vernon Bartlett, member of the British Broadcasting Corporation, disclosed in a British Broadcasting broadcast heard recently in New York by the Columbia Broadcasting Company, that the House of Commons at one day in a place other than the house of parliament, Bartlett's broadcast said:

"As an experiment and as a precaution against increased bombing, the House of Commons met in what I can only call another place."

"That great and famous building, the house of parliament by the Thames, is a very conspicuous target, and it might get knocked about. So we tried an alternative building."

"In this, I think and hope it's going to be very difficult, indeed, for Hitler or any other German to find the mother of parliament into exile."

R.A.F. fighters in Britain ask only that the factories maintain the supply of planes and they will take care of Hitler. The fighting spirit of these men is writing new war history.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 24

ATTITUDES TOWARDS THE GOSPEL MESSAGE

Golden text: Take heed therefore how ye hear. Luke 8:18.

Lesson: Luke 8.

Devotional reading: John 15:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

The Parable of the Sower Stated, Luke 8:4-8. Mark tells us that Jesus sat in a boat on the Sea of Galilee, far enough from the crowd on the shore to be free from their importunities, yet near enough to address them, and taught them many things by means of parables, the first of which was the Parable of the Sower. Not far beyond the crowd, we may well imagine, was ploughed ground over which a sower was walking and sowing from his seed-bag hand-fuls of seed in all directions. Jesus described what would happen to the seed. A foot-path led through the ground, hard trodden, and upon it some of the seed fell to be quickly devoured by the birds. Some of the seed fell on shallow ground at the base of a rock, and there it would spring up and flourish for a brief time, only to wither and die because the ground could hold no moisture. Other seed fell among thorns with which it would fight for a time only to be choked in the end by the stronger growth. Some seed fell on good ground out in the open, and it would grow and flourish, yielding a hundredfold. Having finished his parable Jesus cried, "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

The Parable of the Sower Interpreted, Luke 8:9-15. The disciples asked Jesus for an explanation of the parable of the Sower. He explained to them that the reason for his speaking in parables was two-fold: the parables would impress upon his true followers the lessons he would have them learn; while from the indifferent and the hostile their meaning would be hidden.

Graveyard Of The Lakes

Whitethorn Point On Lake Superior Has Seen Many Wrecks

A lake ship which had been taking shelter at Whitethorn point pulled up an anchor that had, apparently, been there for at least 100 years. It was, no doubt, part of the equipment of some ship that had been lost.

The incident is a reminder to many who have travelled the lakes and others who have followed the news of the lake shipping of mental pictures they have made of the bottom of Lake Superior at that particular place.

Whitethorn is the point at which the routes to various ports at the upper end of the lake converge. It is the area in which ships seek shelter when storms rage. It has been noted for its fog and innumerable cases of ships that have been caught in the fogs have collided and gone down, sometimes with heavy loss of life. Other ships have foundered thereabouts.

But some of these happenings Whitethorn has become known as the graveyard of the lakes. Many millions of dollars of cargo, scores of ships and hundreds, perhaps thousands, of bodies rest on the bottom thereabouts. The bringing up of an old wreck is a reminder of what a picture the bottom of Lake Superior at that point would be.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Spirit Of France

Soul And Mind Unbroken Despite German Conquest

The soul and mind of France are unbroken despite the German conquest for the spirit of France is "a fortress no blitzkrieger can storm," Andre Maurois, French novelist and biographer, said in an address in New York.

Liaison officer between the British and French armies, Maurois told of the last free days of France. He recalled that on the day the Germans entered Paris he went to Buckingham Palace to see Queen Elizabeth "who wanted to express to a Frenchman her sympathy for the sufferings of France."

"She said: 'You have lost everything, M. Maurois, but don't you think that when one has lost everything there is still a great deal left?'"

"The Queen was right. A victorious army can take from you all your worldly possessions, but not your soul, not your mind, and as long as you are alive, there is in that frail little skull of yours a fortress no blitzkrieger can storm. The same is true of a nation. France to-day seems to lie disarmed, at the mercy of her conqueror, but real France remains untouched."

Resolution passed by the Canadian Public Health Association at their recent convention at Winnipeg, urging that all provincial governments enact legislation that will result in compulsory pasteurization of milk meets with the endorsement of the Health League of Canada, according to an editorial in the current issue of "Health."

For many years the Canadian Public Health Association has endorsed the protective value of the pasteurization of milk. They point out that the availability of pasteurization has been demonstrated in urban communities of 500 population or over and even in many rural communities on a province-wide basis.

The Public Health Association also passed a resolution urging that municipal and provincial health authorities appoint only certified sanitary inspectors for full-time appointments wherever possible.

Pointing out that the industrial effort of Canada must be maintained at a maximum for war purposes, the Association urged that employees in war industry be given the advantages of regular health supervision at their work, analogous in principle to that provided for the armed forces.

Much Needed Service

National Society For Deaf Has Been Incorporated In Canada

For more than 20 years Canada has had a National Institute for the Blind, but there has been no corresponding organization for the deaf. This has now been remedied by the formation of the National Society for the Deaf and the Hard of Hearing, with headquarters at 2 Bloor street, east, Toronto.

The National Society has been incorporated by Dominion Charter with the object of co-ordinating the work of the various organizations throughout the Dominion so that an effective nationwide campaign may be carried on among physicians, educators and social workers on behalf of this long neglected and misunderstood problem. The Society aims to adopt every possible means to stimulate scientific effort in prevention of deafness and conservation of hearing; to extend the knowledge and use of lip reading, manual language and approved mechanical aids to hearing; to print and distribute pamphlets and periodicals useful to the deaf and the hard of hearing; to give advice, counsel and assistance of every kind and to promote the higher education, employment and social well-being among both adults and children whose hearing is impaired.

There is a large percentage of people who are hard of hearing and who have not the benefit, nor perhaps the need, for institutional treatment. Their plight is far worse than people with normal hearing realize, and unfortunately, there is universal sympathy for the blind, and people are always ready to help them. The deaf and hard of hearing are sometimes the butt of thoughtless, but nevertheless cruel "humor."

The establishment of this Society supplies a much needed public service.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

He heard a clock strike 11. What should he do? It seemed that there was no other course but to return to the waiting Elks and confess his failure; and he had decided to take this action when he heard above the wind the snap of a lock being turned, and then the voice of Harlow. The man was coming up to the roof, and Jim crouched down in the shadow of the little shed.

"... yes, it is raining, of course it is raining, my dear man. It is always raining in London. But I have been out to it and you haven't! Gosh, how it rained!"

Though the words themselves had a querulous tone, Mr. Harlow's voice was good-humored; it was as though he were speaking to a child.

"Have you got your scarf? That's right. And button your overcoat. You have no gloves, either. What a bird you are!"

"I really don't want gloves," said another voice. "I am not a bit cold. And, Harlow, may I ask: you again?"

The voice became indistinct. They were walking away from the listener, and he guessed they were proceeding by the side of the parapet. Unless Harlow carried a light he would not see the ladder. Jim went stealthily to the back of the shed and peered round the corner. Presently he discerned the figures of the two men; they were walking slowly toward him, their heads bent against the wind. Quickly he drew back again.

"... you can't have it. You are reading too much and I won't have your mind overtaxed by writing too much! Be reasonable, my dear Marling."

Marling! Jim held his breath. They were so near to him now that by taking a step and stretching out his hand he could have touched the nearest man.

The lamps in the street below gave him a skyline against the parapet, and he saw that Harlow's companion was almost as tall as himself, save for a stoop. He caught a glimpse of a head blown all ways by the gale. ... The voices came to him again as they returned, and then a sudden scraping sound, and an exclamation from the financier.

"What the devil was that?" From far below came a faint crash. Jim's heart sank. Harlow must have brushed against the hook ladder and knocked it from the parapet.

"You pushed something over," said the stranger's voice.

"Felt like a hook," said Harlow, and Jim could imagine him peering down over the parapet. "What was it?" he said again.

This was Jim Carlton's opportunity. He could steal round the side of the building, slip through the door which he guessed was open and make his escape. Noiselessly he crept along, and then saw a hand of light coming from the open doorway. Against such a light he must be inevitably detected, unless he chose a moment when their backs were turned. But they showed no inclination to move, and stood there for a time discussing the thing which Harlow had knocked from the stone coping.

"It's very curious"—the big man was talking—"I don't remember there was anything here when we came here this morning. Let us go down again."

The opportunity was lost. Even as Jim stood there listening he heard the feet of the men descending the stairs, the crash of the door as it was closed. He was left on the roof without any means of making his way to solid earth!

To communicate with Elks was impossible without inviting discovery. He took a notebook from his pocket, wrote a hurried message, and, tearing out the sheet, wrapped it in a copper coin. He dropped it as near as he could guess in the vicinity of the place where Elks would be, for he heard the tinkle of the copper as it struck the earth. A quarter of an hour he waited, but there was no sign from below. He tried the door, without even hoping that it would afford him an exit. To his amazement, when he turned the handle the door opened. Here Harlow, in his hurried departure, forgotten to lock it! That was not like Harlow.

Jim pushed the door farther open and looked down. A dim light was burning in the room below, and he had a glimpse of a corner of the secretary and a statue of red wax. Nonetheless he descended the stout stairs, which did not creak under his weight, and after a while, coming to the bottom, he peeped round the lintel.

The room was apparently empty. A big desk stood near the window; there was an empty lacquer bed in one corner, and, before him, a door which was ajar. The only light in the apartment came from the reading lamp on the desk—the crossed the room, and, pressing the lamp control, put the room in darkness.

A light on the landing outside was now visible round the edge of the door. He peeped out and could see no sign of life. Before him was a stairway which led down to the lower floors of the house. Something told him that his presence in the landing was known. On the left of the house was another door, and the first thing he noticed was that the key was in the lock. Whoever had opened and entered that room had gone in such haste that the key had not been removed. Jim saw his hand in the lock, and he could recognize her instantly from Alleen's description. Slidly erect, her arms folded before her, she stood waiting. Her hand blew over his head with malignity, she was a more menacing figure than Harlow himself.

"What is this talk of murder? Who has been murdered, I should like to know!" she demanded.

But Harlow pointed past her.

"Murder was not my cue, Lucy Edwins," he said pleasantly. "Your sense of the dramatic will be your ruin!"

For a moment it seemed that the woman would sneeze that impetuous figure. She blinked at him resentfully, almost hatefully, and then turned, stiff as a ramrod, and disappeared.

Manitoba Sugar Beets

Farmers Expected To Plant Larger Acreage To Beets Next Year

The campaign to make Manitoba self-sufficient in production of food-stuffs is expected next year to result in the harvesting of enough sugar beets to meet the demands of the population.

The campaign was stimulated by reports of sugar beet farmers and the local refinery that this year's crop of 37,000 tons of refined sugar was approximately 300,000 pounds of refined sugar. The province normally consumes 400,000 to 500,000, 000 pounds of sugar annually.

Farmers are expected to plant 25,000 acres to beets next year, and to increase the average yield from this year's 7½ tons per acre to 12 to 14 tons. The crop this year approximated 120,000 tons.

Experience has taught the farmers that a smaller area intensively cultivated will produce a better yield. A Mexican expert recently visited the beet-growing district advising farmers and factory employees how to handle beets.

The provincial government plans to co-operate with farmers in erecting posts. A system of crop rotation has been worked out. During between years when the land is not planted to beets, wheat, potatoes and other crops will be grown.

G. H. Atkins, K.C., son of the late Sir James Atkins, former lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, is one of the leaders in the campaign.

Planes Better Built

Authority On Aeronautics Explains How British Have Edge On Nazis

Two Nazi mistakes which have given air ascendancy to Britain are outlined in an interview by Major F. A. de Vere Robertson, the authority on aeronautics.

Temporary specifications often lie behind the perfection of aircraft ordered by the Air Ministry," he said. "We do not know the names of the worthies who decided that British single-seater fighters must have eight machine guns apiece, and that bombers must have gun turrets operated by power of the engines, but we owe them a heavy debt. They were right; and the Germans, who chose other tactics, were wrong."

"German fighters mount fewer guns, and place a good deal of reliance on the use of a machine gun which fires a small shell. One hit from such a shell will often put an airplane out of action, but the cannon have not proved very destructive. A comparatively small amount of ammunition can be carried."

"The concentrated fire of eight ordinary guns has proved more effective, unless the opposing aircraft is heavily armored—and armor means weight with all its drawbacks. However, the British authorities are prepared to use cannon, if it seems desirable. New British fighters have been produced which will be still better than the very successful Hurricanes and Spitfires, but their speed and armament will not be announced in advance."

"The Germans were also wrong about bomber tactics," Major Robertson explained. "They believed that a bomber should trust to its speed and not to its guns when attacked by fighters. So they produced great numbers of the Heinkel III, the Dornier 17 and 215, and the Junkers 88, all fast machines with slim fuselages (which could not be adapted to take a turret) and only mounting three machine guns each. These guns have to be swung by the muscles of the gunner. Turret fire is so deadly that German fighters are usually unable to get the better of our bombers, and have often declined to clash with them. Of British bombers too, it can be said that still better types will soon make their appearance."

Quick Action Of Red Cross

Tons Of Supplies For War Victims In Britain

A Canadian woman now living in Cornwall, England, sent the following cable to a Canadian Red Cross official in Toronto: "Implore you send me all surplus blankets, warm clothing and boots for war victims, evacuate children and adults. Urgent."

The reply went back over the ocean the same day, "Get in touch with Canadian Red Cross headquarters in London. They have been instructed to assist you."

Two days later came a cable from the Canadian woman in England: "Through your kindness, your London office has sent over two tons supplies. Deeply grateful to everyone."

These cables were made public to show the people of Canada the speed with which Canadian Red Cross supplies stored in England are dispatched to the districts where they are needed.

The Canadian woman who asked for assistance is Mrs. Neynor Williams, formerly of Peterborough, Ont., who nursed overseas in the last war and has lived in England ever since. She is in charge of the evacuation of children into Cornwall from the danger areas of England. Her large home and estate in Cornwall have been offered as a convalescent home for Canadian troops. The cables were received by Mrs. John C. Fraser, vice-chairman of the Ontario division, Women's War Work Committee of the Canadian Red Cross.

Canadian Red Cross supplies are pouring out daily to air-raided victims in England. Tons of food, as well as thousands of blankets and articles of clothing, are being distributed. At the present time, the Women's War Work Committee of the Canadian Red Cross is concentrating on the production of 50,000 garments for refugees, evacuees and air-raided victims in England.

Fisheries Aid War

Ontario And Manitoba Ship Large Quantities Of Caviar To United States

Even the sturgeon in Canada's lakes and rivers has a place in the war effort and this year they will be responsible for purchase of at least a piece of a warplane. In other words and according to fisheries department experts, Canada has a good market for caviar in the United States.

If Ontario production is up as production is reported to be in Manitoba, the Dominion will get at least $7,000 in United States money to use for war buying. Caviar usually sells for $1 a pound and this year prices are rising.

Two factors enter into this fast situation. First there are the prospects of a shortage for caviar eaters in the U.S. because the war has interfered with importations from Russia. Second, Manitoba expects to ship to the United States this year more than 2,400 pounds of the delectable little fish eggs, 900 pounds more than last year. Last year Manitoba shipped 1,512 pounds and Ontario sent 4,874 pounds to the United States. These two provinces are the big Canadian producers.

London Hitch-Hikers

Travel Free In Motor Cars At Their Own Risk

Pedestrians caught on London's streets during night air raids wondered why so many motorists ignored their endeavors to "thumb" rides. Some indignantly charged the drivers with selfishness.

Then a spokesman for the motorists gave their side of the case. Many drivers, he said, hesitated to offer strangers a lift because their insurance policies did not cover them against injury to passengers.

LT-Col. J. Moore-Bracon, minister of transport, offers this suggestion. Drivers should put a notice on the sides of their cars saying "Free lifts at your own risk," he declares. This would absolve them from liability for any injuries suffered by passengers.
